

How do I get my products stocked or listed?

What happens next - Books?

Due to the volume of submissions we receive, we are not able to reply to everyone. As such if we have not contacted you within 4 weeks, we have decided not to stock your books at this time. Please note that we are unable to return review copies.

If we do decide to stock your products, we will contact you directly to advise you and discuss commercial terms, discounts and supply. Almost without exception, books from new publisher relationships will be taken into stock on a consignment basis (we hold stock and pay monthly on sales achieved).

NB. As a general rule of thumb: all books that are held as stock lines are 'sold' to our retail customers on a 'Sale or Return' basis, whereas listed/non-stock lines (Special Orders) and books provided as Print on Demand are sold on a 'Firm Sale' basis.

Books that we list, but don't stock, are sourced through the Nielsen Bookdata teleordering service. Listed titles, or non-stock lines, are made available to our retail customers via our Special Order Service.

Once your titles have been confirmed for stock or listing please submit bibliographic data for them using the books Excel spreadsheet available in the Selling to Us section on www.gardners.com

What happens next - Entertainment Product?

Due to the volume of submissions we receive, we are not able to reply to everyone. As such if we have not contacted you within 4 weeks, we have decided not to stock your entertainment products at this time.

If we decide to stock your products, we will contact you directly to advise you and discuss commercial terms, discounts, consignment and supply.

Entertainment products that we list, but don't stock, are made available to order for our retail customers

Once your titles have been confirmed for stock or listing please submit bibliographic data for them using the entertainment Excel spreadsheet available in the Selling to Us section on www.gardners.com